What Is an Online Booking System

- The name pretty much speaks for itself. An online booking system lets customers book with you online. This means no more phone tag or emails back and forth to find a suitable time.
- Remember the days of checking manually for whether an appointment slot was free? After you did that, you'd let the client know, then they would suggest another time, and so on and so forth. Any further changes required another call and the same process all over again. Even with receptionists and dedicated staff, this takes up a lot of admin time and inefficiency, resulting in lost customers.
- At the core, online booking systems give clients a way of seeing, booking and paying for appointments online through your website.
- The whole process is done all online, pretty much without any involvement from you. As it's all a digital process, this means that no double-booking or human error can occur in this process.
- Truly forward-thinking software can even let customers even on mobile. Suddenly, people can book from anywhere, at any time of day. No more lost customers due to business hours or busy landlines. Customers will be happier too, using the simple system where they can see all options available at a glance.
- Why should your company consider using online appointment scheduling software? The benefits of using this are profound – saving you time and money. That's not to mention the increased satisfaction of your customers meaning greater profits for you.

The purpose of an online booking system

A booking system can help you do way more than just passively accept bookings and payments online. Reservation technology (res-tech) has evolved to the point that it's become a central hub for managing every aspect of your business, from marketing to distribution to operations.

- Here are just a few things you can do:
- Track your growth with real-time reporting
- Avoid double bookings with channel management
- Keep track of your partnership commissions
- Assign inventory and staff to individual activities
- Gather details about your guests before they arrive
- Break down your day to day priorities
- The list goes on and on

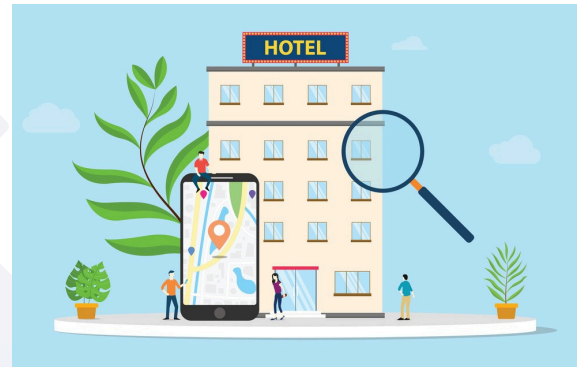

But don't just take my word for it. Before you adopt a new system, you should always consider if it's right for your business. So, let's quickly go over the pros and cons of an online booking system.

Internet has gradually become the best place to index your business, due to its huge and feasible reach. It is also quoted by few that a business without an online presence is not a business at all, People of the travel industry have already taken this up seriously and are successfully running their booking portals online. The opening up of booking portals online has made a great impact on the bus business. It is gradually replacing the most-used ways of booking outstation transport

Around The Clock Reservations
The Seat Of Your Choice
Relatively Lower Rates

As explained earlier, travel agents may charge you an extra amount on the actual ticket fare, apart from their commission due to your lack of knowledge about the rates. On the other side, the online feature is more authentic and has more transparency. It gives a clear and justifiable breakup of the ticket rates which creates a sense of belief among the passengers.
